Pilots Union To Support Strikers

Chicago, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Air Line Pilots' Association, which claims a membership of 500 fliers and is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has decided to stand behind the 23 Century Air Lines pilots discharged yesterday after they declined to accept new wage scale.

President David Behncke, after a meeting last night, announced all pilots who will enter the employ of the Century Lines under the new rate of pay will be permanently barred from the Association. The discharged men will be cared for by union's benefit fund.

The 23 fliers turned down pay of $5 an hour for night and $3 an hour for day flying with a monthly minimum guarantee of $150, threatening to strike if former flat salaries of $350 to $375 a month were not restored. The company announced it would hire other pilots.

Will Ask Congress For 120 New Ships

Washington, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson of the House Naval committee said today Congress will be asked to approve his $616,250,000 warship construction bill before the present session ends.

The measure, which would authorize 120 new vessels, already has been approved by the committee. A request for House action, however, was delayed because of the depleted condition of the Treasury.

"I feel now that we should go ahead and present the bill to Congress as soon as possible," Vinson said.

The construction bill probably can be reached by April.

Japanese People Buy "War Birds" for Army

Remember America's patriotic celebration during the World War days? Well, the same fever now grips Japan as the result of the conflict with China. Here is part of a large crowd gathered at a Japanese airport for an impressive christening of two new army planes purchased through donations of the people. At the left is a huge tri-motored fighting craft, Patriot No. 1. The other is a hospital plane, Patriotic No. 2.

Lazy Workers in Russia Punished by Comrades

Here is probably the most novel type of court in the world, in session as the collective farm in Tashkent, Russia, and like many others in the land of the Soviets. Men who have maintained the full standard of production under the five-year-plan, judge and deal out heavy penalties to their comrades who have been inefficient. The prosecutor is shown here pointing to two workers on trial.

British Isles Hit By Severe Blizzard

London, Feb. 10.—(UP)—One of the most severe blizzards of a decade swept over the British Isles and northern Europe today, with heavy snow, sleet, and bitter rains plunging Britain into Arctic weather.

Conditions were particularly bad on the east coast, where heavy seas swept over the decks of channel vessels, coating seamen with thick ice and causing intense suffering to passengers.

Many Channel vessels stayed in port. Fishing boats sought the protection of harbors as menacing breakers, driven by a high wind, tore up long stretches of beach.

Norris Lost Fight On Ira M. Ornburn

Washington, Feb. 10.—(UP)—The Senate has confirmed Ira M. Ornburn, Connecticut Democrat, as a member of the Tariff Commission after considering anonymous charges against him in its first secret session in nearly three years.

Ornburn was confirmed by a vote of 70 to 8. The Senate at the same time without a record vote confirmed Robert Lincoln O'Brien of Boston as Chairman of the Tariff Commission.

Senator Norris, Repr., Neb., sought to have Ornburn's nomination re-committed for further investigation by the Finance committee, which had reported favorably. Norris said unverified charges had been made against Ornburn. He declined to discuss the charges in open session.

Republican leader Watson then suggested a secret session and the galleries were cleared and the doors closed.

The secret session was the first held by the senate since June, 1929.

The bulk of the estate was left to Mrs. Dreyfuss.

Cost Job as Editor Cento, Student Paper

Danville, Ky., Feb. 10—(AP)—Charles J. Thurmond's views on matrimony, published under the caption, "Stupidity of Marriage," have cost him his job as editor of the Cento, student publication at Centre College.

A big demand for copies of the February 5 issue of the publication was reported today when it became known that the editorial had resulted in Thurmond's removal from the editorial post.

Thurmond wrote that marriage "ends in wrecked lives and the casting of ugly blemishes on young lives having to come in contact with it." At a meeting of the college discipline committee called yesterday by Dr. Charles J. Turk, president of the college, Thurmond was ousted as editor. The paper's staff named Larry Woboril to succeed him. Thurmond's supporters claimed the storm was caused by "class politics," but their protests were to no avail.

Thurmond, a resident of Danville and a senior in the college, will be permitted to remain in school and no further disciplinary action is planned. In a statement he said there was no one in college "who is stricter in his personal morals than I am," and stated "I do not practice what is expressed as a possible solution to unsatisfactory marriage."

2-1/2 cups tomatoes

1-3 teaspoon pepper
Cut bacon into small pieces. Heat in frying pan. Add and brown onions and cooked rice. Add rest of ingredients. Cook slowly 15 minutes. Stir frequently.

Carnival at Mardi Gras Forsaken Instant Lent Arrives

New Orleans, Feb. 10 —(AP)—The bells of St. Louis Cathedral today called the faithful to repentance and drove the spirit of Mardi Gras back to the land of fantasy long before dawn scattered the mist from the Mississippi river.

At 11:55 last night, Jackson Square—Place d'Armes—seethed with humanity hilariously alive with the carnival urge which makes old men do childish things.

Five minutes later the bells of the old church boomed their warning that the Lenten season had arrived. Masks were lifted before the first notes died away, and the Mardi Gras was closed officially in the old quarter which follows rigidly the rule that the carnival must be forsaken the minute Lent arrives.

The new section across Canal Street blazed with lights and vibrated with raucous noises far into the morning.

Lincoln Opposed to Federal Liquor Tax

Washington, Feb. 10 —(AP)—Approach of Lincoln's Birthday led the W. C. T. U. to recall that the Civil War President was opposed to a federal tax on liquor.

A statement by the organization quoted Lincoln, in signing a bill for such a tax as a war measure, as saying:

"I would rather lose my right arm than sign a document that will tend to perpetuate the liquor traffic; and as soon as the exigencies shall pass away, I will turn by whole attention to the repeal of that document."

That tax, said the statement, ended in the liquor traffic becoming a controlling political factor, until prohibition. The incident as recalled as a prohibition warning for the future.

Hon. Sidney Story In Fine Address At D. A. R. Luncheon

The Daughters of the American Revolution held their annual luncheon Saturday, February 6th, at the Hotel Dixon. Hon. Sidney Story of Chicago gave the address of the afternoon.

Mr. Story comes from a long line of Americans; one of his earliest ancestors settled in Massachusetts in 1630. Since that time the family has been represented in all the wars in which our country has needed defense. He himself formed a unit in Spanish American War.

In his talk he said that Washington advised the Americans to keep their ships on the sea but we have neglected this and turned our eyes inward. It was Washington who told us that he who controls the sea controls the world.

England has never wanted us to have sea supremacy. We have had no Merchant Marine from the time of the Civil War until the Shipping Board was organized before the World War. Other nations have not wanted us to have a large Merchant Marine for in that case, trade would be taken from them. We were drawn into the World War to keep us from getting the commerce of the world. Millions of dollars which have been paid to foreign governments to carry goods to other ports should have been paid into our own Merchant Marine. During Taft's administration Mr. Story was in Buenos Aires on a commission for the President, and he tells us that when the fleet which was on its way to naval maneuvers, stopped in the harbor there, the ammunition and supplies were all carried in foreign ships. If any nation had attacked the fleet at that time the foreign ships would have withdrawn to remain neutral and our ships would have been without supplies. To protect ourselves we should have vessels of our own.

From the time of President Wilson the United States has been giving up her rights to sea power; England, on the other hand, at the naval conference at London gained permission to arm her Merchant ships with 6 and 8 inch guns which gives her great advantage in time of war.

Mr. Story spoke of the great trade route of the St. Lawrence sea way and lakes to Gulf waterway which will bring parts of the world close to the heart of our nation and will mean economic independence to the Mississippi Valley.

Excerpts from his discussion of Communism follow:

Communism is a war between decency and debasement—between Moscow, the Godless and Christianity. The five year plan is a screen behind which Russia is organizing a mammoth army which she will turn loose upon western Europe as soon as her plan is completed. We claim that all men have a right to free assembly, free speech and the right to expatriate on any thought or plan, but when, to accomplish this end, they preach overthrowing the government by violence and revolution it is time to call a halt.

Every red-blooded American will not fail to read the report No. 2290 by the Committee of Congress on the subversive activities throughout America. You should write to the Hon. Hamilton Fish, Washington, D. C., for copies of his report No. 2290. Mr. Fish is chairman of the Congressional Committee referred to.

This poison of Communism must be checked and those who preach revolution, disloyalty and treason must be driven out of the nation. You should write to your Representative in Congress, Senators and Congressmen and to the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., and urge the passage of legislation needed by the government and the courts to purge America of these enemies of the Republic and of civilization. Let them go to Russia the utopia they sing about, America is no place for them.

It is time for America to wake up to the insidious wiles of those enemies who seek to poison the minds of our children and of all loyal sons and daughters of the republic.

In this blessed year, when through our land we are celebrating Washington's Bicentennial, to rededicate ourselves to the service of America, to rekindle the fire of patriotism so as to bring us back to the worship of the true God and the ideals of our fathers, those who have wandered from the fold. The mess into which our nation has been drawn over there in Asia, which is apt to cost us millions of lives of our American boys and billions of treasures, should remind us of the advice of the immortal Washington—"Cultivate friendly relations with all nations, but political alliances with none."

Regular Meeting Of W. R. C. Monday

Dixon Woman's Relief Corps No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, held its regular meeting Monday afternoon, with a very good attendance.

The chairman of the Relief committee and the chairman of the Child Welfare committee, both gave splendid reports of the work accomplished since the last meeting. These committees have distributed bedding, jewelry, clothing and 500 magazines.

As there are many calls for clothing the Corps will have a sewing day February 16th at G. A. R. hall with a picnic dinner at the noon hour.

The president, Mrs. Jones, appointed the executive chairman for the year, and the yearly folders were distributed.

Plans were made for the placing of a wreath at Lincoln's monument Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The President requests all members who can to attend and the public is invited to attend this service.

After the business session a short program was given commemorating the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

The first number was a piano solo by Mrs. Myrtle Bishop, who responded with an encore.

A paper, "The Life of Lincoln," was given by Mrs. LaFerne Helms. "No closing number was a vocal solo, "No Land Like Ours," by Mrs. Myrtle George, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marcia Rice.

The next regular meeting will be held on February 22nd, and a program will be given in observance of the bi-centennial of George Washington.

God Sought In Lenten Season

Chicago, Feb. 10—(AP)—As the Lenten season opened today, 100 representative Chicago ministers and laymen urged the nation to make it the occasion for a religious revival "as the best way out of mental depression, business stagnation and moral chaos."

"People are ripe for a spiritual harvest," their appeal said. "People are dissatisfied with themselves, with materialism, with selfishness. The multitudes are turning to the church as they have not done since the world war."

Among those joining in the plea were Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. Robert Clements, D. D., President of the Chicago Church Federation, and George W. Dixon, chairman of the religious observance committee of the 1933 century of progress exposition.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF by ALICIA HART

Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Leland Stanford University, who died recently, was a great friend of youth and had an enormous understanding of childhood.

He is remembered for many famous sayings, among them, "The problem of life is not to make life easier but to make men stronger."

This is a sermon to take home and ponder over. Are we trying to make our children stronger? Or are we trying to make life easier for them when they grow up?

After all, both things probably work parallel, because life is easier to the strong man. He learns to accept hardships, to face battles and to assume responsibility without wearing himself out either mentally or physically. The old saying that work does not kill as many people as worry merely puts the same thing into other words. It is our emotions that wear us out, worries, chafing, disappointments, discouragements.

When children are little they have the same trials in proportion to their small world that we have in ours. Never discount childish troubles—they are there, as real as the clouds.

Lessons in Life
The way we teach them to surmount their small failures and disappointments is the way they will regard bigger worries in later life. True, children need more encouragement, more praise, more love, more understanding than adults, but at the same time these things carried out to the exclusion of more strenuous guidance would be a standing process.

It is right to teach them to stand up for what they consider just and fair when it takes courage to do so. It is right to see that they have responsibilities regarding home duties and that they learn to do them without too much grumbling. No adult ever takes responsibility well who has not learned at least something about it when he was young. It is right to teach children that truth and honesty come first even though they get no return, and often the reverse, for it.

We Americans have had an erroneous idea that the more we do for our children in a material way the happier they will be when they grow up. We are learning that in too many cases it is quite the reverse. The spoiled child, the spoiled youth will be only too likely to break under unhappiness and emotional stress if his rose-strewn path suddenly turns steep and rocky.

This terse little sentence of Dr. Jordan's should be hung up where the old sampler used to hold sway. "God Bless Our Home." That good old prayer will take on a newer and deeper meaning if this interpretation is given to it. The really blessed home is one in which everyone

Services Usher In Lent Today

The Lenten season opened today in Dixon with services in the various churches. Lent continues for forty days, with periods of fasting and abstinence and preparation for Easter Sunday, March 27.

Services today will include the blessing and distribution of the ashes in the Catholic churches, special services at St. Luke's Episcopal church, and there will be special Lenten services in the Presbyterian Methodist, Lutheran, Christian, Baptist and Congregational, Evangelical Church of God and other churches during the Lenten period.

Bishop Stewart, loved divine, gave special services over the radio from 12 to 12:30 o'clock today over station WGN and every day at noon there will be Lenten service.

As the grey cloak of depression and discouragement droops over the land, the Great Comforting Spirit sheds the sunshine of His Love over all. It is always there but man sometimes forgets this in prosperity and trusts and turns to it in troublous times.

TWO MEN FROM JAPAN.
 World problems today are calling, as never before, for clear thinking. Among the things that must be re-examined are some of our oldest and most cherished emotional and intellectual standards.

Recent news from the Orient, for instance, sets one to musing about two eminent Japanese—Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, and Admiral Koichi Shiosawa.

Dr. Noguchi is dead. He gave up his life in Africa while pursuing his world-famous study of tropical diseases; but before he died he had served humanity about as well as any other man of his century. He attacked yellow fever, sleeping sickness and other plagues with the selfless and heroic skill of a great scientist.

A great many men—Americans, Frenchmen, Germans, Englishmen, Japanese, native Africans—are going to live longer because of his work. All nationalities and all races benefit.

Admiral Shiosawa commanded the Japanese fleet that bombarded Shanghai. Shells, bombs and machine gun bullets, at his command, ripped through the houses there and killed scores, hundreds—no one knows just how many. He spread death with a lavish and relentless hand. His bombardment created alarm in such faraway places as London and Washington.

Now this, of course, is not to say that Dr. Noguchi was a better man than Admiral Shiosawa. Bravery, fidelity and devotion were possessed by each. Each one did his duty as he saw it and did it unhesitatingly and thoroughly.

But it does shed a revealing light on the causes the two men served. The physician served humanity as a whole; the sailor served his own nation. Never was the contrast between the fruits of nationalism and internationalism more strikingly exhibited.

Isn't it, perhaps, about time that we re-examined the concept of nationalism? In a world that has become so closely knit, isn't it possible that a little revision of this old and honorable standard might be in order?

A NEW RELIEF PLAN.

One of the most sensible ideas for meeting unemployment seems to be the "Man-a-Block" plan, which originated several weeks ago in Buffalo and which is rapidly spreading to other cities throughout the country.

Under this plan, 10 families in one block or on one street club together and agree to provide two hours of work apiece, each week, for 10 weeks, to be paid for at the rate of a dollar for each two hours' work. Then, through some reputable charity organization, some jobless man who has a family to support is assigned to each group.

Thus each group provides 10 weeks of work, at $10 a week, for some luckless family man.

The plan is only a makeshift, of course. But it is infinitely better than compelling men to live on out-and-out charity. It is a scheme that is worth a thorough trial everywhere.

GUARANTEES OF PEACE.

Whenever the delicate tangle in the far east causes you to worry about the possibility of direct trouble between the United States and Japan, it might comfort you considerably to give a thought to the existing financial and commercial relationships between the two nations.

To begin with, the analysis of the J. P. Morgan foreign loan business recently presented to the Senate Finance Committee shows that American investors are extensive holders of Japanese securities. Since 1924, the house of Morgan has floated in this country Japanese public and private bonds to the extent of more than $280,000,000. Other banking firms, doubtless, have also handled Japanese bonds. American investors, consequently, have the best of reasons for opposing any break in relations.

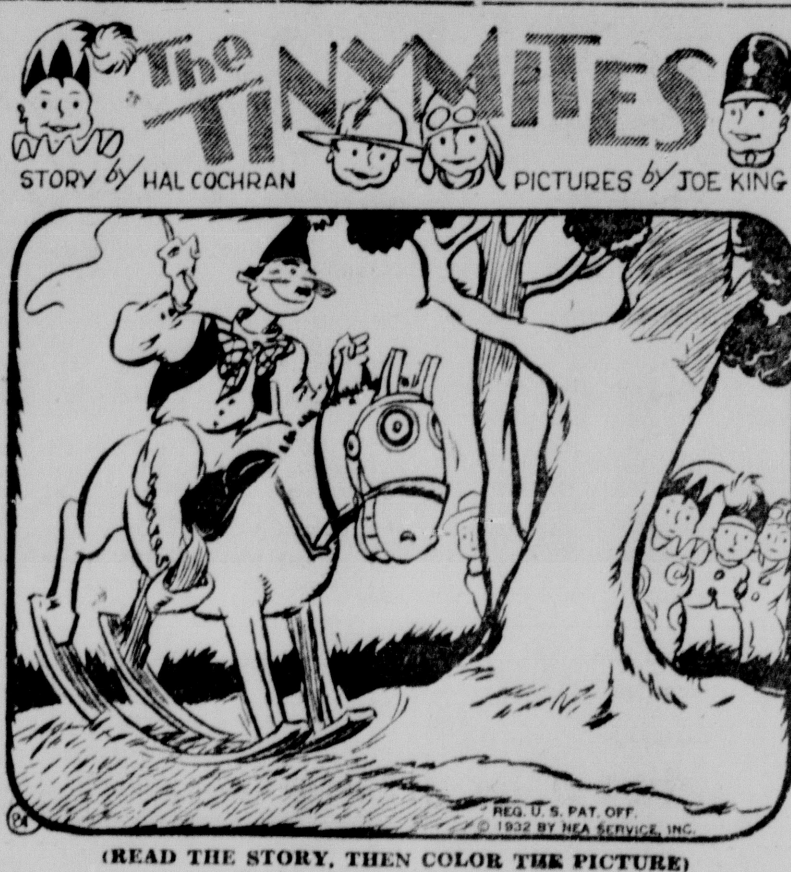

As was once said with reference to the World War, the present depression might well be characterized as a major phenomenon in the life of the American Republic.—Congressman John E. Rankin of Mississippi.

The greatest mistake made by the United States since the Civil War was the adoption of the 18th amendment.—Charles A. Boston, former president American Bar Association.

Should liberty fall, there is nothing but compulsion to take its place.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia U.

I do not choose to run for the presidency—I can win in a walk.—George Edward Stewart of Butte Falls, Ore., third party presidential candidate.

Nor is that all. The production of silk is Japan's major industry; and America is Japan's chief silk customer. Would Japanese businessmen welcome a conflict?

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"I've had enough of that old cart," cried Duncy. "It has crashed apart and we're not going to fix it. What's the next best thing to do? Gee, as for me I'd like to snooze. We have a lot of time to lose. Well, someone else say something. How about the rest of you?"

"I'll merely say you're lazy, lad," said Scouty. "Why, I'll bet you've had more sleep than any one of us and yet you'd sleep some more. Please stay awake and think real strong on how we're going to move along. If we can reach some new place, pleasing sights should be in store."

And there they sat, a solemn lot. They'd be there still, as like as not, if Windy hadn't jumped and cried, "I hear a noise right near. It sounded like a horse's neigh. Well, look what's coming down our way. It is a man on horseback and he shortly will be here."

They all were much surprised, of course, to see a very funny horse. It traveled on long rockers and it swayed like everything. When it had rocked up to the bunch, the man cried out, "I have a hunch that you'll be glad that I have come, 'cause real good luck I bring."

"You see, I am the builder man. I build most everything I can. Perhaps you'd like to journey to my work place. It's not far, I'll promise you fine sights galore, that you have never seen before. But, if you want to see them, we must go to where they are."

"Say, you don't know how kind you are. And we don't care if it's real far. You see, we are adventurers," said Copy, with a grin. "You've told us we can go with you and that's just what we'd like to do. If we are going to hike it, kindly say when we begin."

INHALATIONS
 Inhalations represent a method of treatment available to all and that may be used with great effectiveness and little risk in respiratory conditions.

The most common form of inhalation treatment consists of simple or medicated steam. This is particularly valuable in acute inflammatory conditions.

Steam soothes the inflamed mucous membranes, reduces the tendency to cough, softens the accumulated phlegm and facilitates its expectoration.

Steam inhalations should not be used in chronic catarrhal conditions, for here the membranes are so inflamed that the steam will act only as an added irritant. In chronic

Dixon Statue Of Lincoln Part Of Bulletin Theme

Washington, D. C., — While Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States whose birthday is celebrated February 12, was born in Kentucky, and the finest memorial erected in his memory stands on the banks of the Potomac in Washington, the State of Illinois possesses more places associated with his private life than any other region.

A pilgrimage to the Lincoln shrines in Illinois is described by Junius B. Wood in a special communication to the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Springfield, the State Capital, is the national shrine of Lincoln," Mr. Wood writes. "One of the largest collections of Lincolniana is in the cramped nave of his tomb, in beautiful Oak Ridge Cemetery. As his body was brought here from Washington to find a final resting place in Illinois soil a sorrowing nation paid tribute along the way."

Homestead Still Standing

The old Lincoln homestead is also in Springfield. In this tree-shaded mansion the Lincoln family lived from 1844 until their departure, in 1861, to occupy the White House in Washington. After the death of Mrs. Lincoln in 1882, the house was deeded to the State by Robert Todd Lincoln and now contains many relics of the famous Illinoisian.

"At Beardstown, in the west-central part of the State, Lincoln gave the almanac a place in criminology by proving that the moon was about to set on the night the State's star witness said he saw a murder when the moon was shining brightly!"

"Today the marshes of the Illinois River near Beardstown are a duck hunter's paradise. Twenty-five club-houses rise within five miles of Beardstown—not makeshift bunks under a leaky shed, but imposing establishments, with annual membership fees from $1,500 to $6,000. Each has its own duck reservations and comfortable shooting covers."

Where Lincoln was a Soldier

"At Dixon, in the north-central part of the state, John Dixon ran a ferry and inn in 1829, sold whiskey for 50 cents a gallon, and bedded man and beast for another 50 cents. Lincoln, Jefferson Davis and Zachary Taylor were among the names on his register. The blockhouse where Lincoln served during the Black Hawk War is here. A little farther north, along the valley of the beautiful Rock River, stands a heroic image of the Indian leader, Black Hawk, in stone, brooding over the land where once he roamed. This gigantic statue, erected by Lorado Taft, is near Oregon and faces up Stillman Valley, where one of the worst Indian massacres in the history of Illinois took place."

"Near the center of the State, in Decatur, Lincoln made his first residence in Illinois. In Decatur, too, the first G. A. R. post was established in 1866. A towering corn refinery here reminds the traveler that more than half of the nation's corn products are refined in Illinois. Indians were growing corn in the Illinois before Columbus saw his first corn field."

"Lincoln, first of twenty-four American cities of that name, and of seventeen more which are modifications of the name, is off the main highway, in almost the exact center of the state. The Emancipator helped to plan it, and christened it himself by breaking a watermelon over a wagon wheel. Lincoln also surveyed the near-by town site of Petersburg."

Old Salem Now State Park

"The deserted village of Old Salem, where he lived in 1831, is now a State Park. The two-story log tavern where he wooed Ann Rutledge, the Offutt store where he wrestled Armstrong, the Lincoln and Berry grocery where he clerked, and the Onstot and another log cabin in which he dwelled, are restored. He led his company of woodsmen from there in the Black Hawk War of 1832, ruefully commenting, on his return, that he had fought a war and never fired a shot."

"Bloomington, the center of McLean County, preens itself as the birthplace of the Republican party, as do Ripon, Wisconsin and Jackson, Michigan. It was here that Lincoln delivered his 'Lost Speech' in the old Major block, May 29, 1856. It was 'lost' to the extent that the newspaper reporters were too excited to take notes. A lawyer did, but the speech was not published until many years later."

"Carrollton shows the spot where Lincoln made a joke of his duel with Shields by using his sword to cut Jimson weeds."

"Chicago's finest park is named for the Civil War President, a beautiful playground that extends for about five miles along the lake shore and includes many recrea-

Ballantine, fourth man to hold his present post, is 49, and a classmate of Mills at Harvard. He was born in Oberlin, O., but moved on east to Springfield, Mass., where he went to school. There in casual puddles, legend has it, he developed a fondness for sailboats which never left him. How he came to take up golf is not recorded.

As for his politics, he had no alternative, being surrounded by Republicans from birth.

He married Helen Bailey Grages of Springfield right after getting his law degree at Harvard. They have had two sons and two daughters, but one son is dead.

Ballantine started practicing law in Boston in 1906, a year before receiving his degree. He has been Solicitor of Internal Revenue, an instructor at the Harvard Law School, and an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. SOLD CORN TO PAY COURT

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Joseph Brosamer, farmer of Oran township, Logan county, advised the Federal Court here today he had sold 500 bushels of corn at 25 cents a bushel to raise court costs so he could file a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. He listed his liabilities as $14,452.89 and his assets at $8,659.

At the same time Larry F. Kevin, a proprietor of a clothing store in Springfield, filed a petition without paying costs. He told the court he had $3,500 liabilities and $1,700 assets, but no money to pay the clerk's charge for filing his petition in bankruptcy.

U. S. postal deficit is about $100,000,000 annually.

CHINA'S FINANCE MINISTER STATES NATION'S STAND

Pictures China As Victim Unjustified Japanese Aggression

(Editor's note:—China's Minister of Finance, T. V. Soong, who carries the main burden of Chinese government direction at Shanghai, has cabled the New York World-Telegram a statement, picturing China as a victim of unjustified Japanese aggression and battling for its independence.)

His startling statement places military casualties to date at 2,200 on both sides, with civilian casualties estimated at thousands—many actual deaths.

Soong's statement is an interesting counterpart to the statement of Premier Inukai of Japan, published last week, which charged China with attacking the Japanese landing forces at Shanghai.)

BY T. V. SOONG
(Written for the New York World-Telegram
(Copyright, 1932)

Shanghai, Feb. 10.—(UP)—China's manhood, armed only with rifles, machine guns and gas-pipe mortars, is battling for China's independence, so solemnly guaranteed by international pacts and agreements to which the powers are parties.

Despite the Japanese invasion of the three eastern provinces (Manchuria), a flagrant breach of the Washington treaty, the Kellogg pact and the League covenant, the Chinese government has persistently maintained a correct attitude toward Japan, refraining from all retaliatory acts and according the fullest protection to Japanese lives and property, although properly refusing to interfere with the patriotic spirit of the nation in refusing to buy Japanese goods and services.

In a high-handed effort to crush the Chinese national spirit, the Japanese authorities, under pretext of settling a minor incident involving three Japanese monks, presented an ultimatum to Mayor W. Tchen of Shanghai, demanding dissolution of the people's patriotic organizations.

The unconditional acceptance of the ultimatum at 1:45 on the afternoon of Jan. 28 was described as highly satisfactory by the Japanese Consul-General. Yet the same night, Admiral Shikawa transmitted to the Chinese authorities a note ordering the Chinese troops to evacuate north of Shanghai, and half an hour later without warning suddenly attacked the city, laying waste the whole of the district, using heavy artillery while airplanes simultaneously showered incendiary bombs. The Japanese sent warships to Nanking and Swatow, later bombarding Nanking.

Civilians Killed
Japanese gunmen, self-styled "police" illegally armed with revolvers, clubs and knives, molested, shot and bayoneted innocent civilians within the Shanghai settlement territory. Even women and children were murdered, while, without due process of law, suspected snipers were executed. Ambulances were attacked. An American lady, Dr. Love Rankin, was seriously injured.

Chinese non-combatant dead and wounded are estimated at several thousand. Many of these were killed within the international settlement, a district inhabited by 500,000 was deliberately burned.

The greatest act of vandalism was the bombing of the plant of the Commercial Press, valued at 10,000,000 taels (about $3,350,000), destroying an invaluable library containing irreplaceable ancient manuscripts. Even American institutions of learning were destroyed.

While civilian casualties run into thousands, the Chinese military casualties to date are about 1,000 and the Japanese 1,200. This is due to the fact that the Chinese were de-

THREE WIDOWS CLAIM $12,000,000 FORTUNE OF MAN WHO FOUND RICHEST U.S. OIL FIELD

By PHILIP J. SINNOTT
NEA Service Writer

San Francisco—How the man who prospected the richest oil field in America enjoyed a life equally rich in romance will be disclosed in court here early in March when three women, each claiming to be his legal widow, battle for his $12,000,000 estate.

The man was Washington Henry Ochsenrider.

The estate represents his holdings in the Kettleman Hills oil field in central California.

Swiss emigrant, Stanford University graduate and diligent geologist, Ochsenrider vainly tried for several years before his death in 1927 to dispose of rights to oil lands he had prospected. He couldn't sell the lot for $12,000.

Three Times Wed
Three times he married; twice he was divorced.

In his will he named his last wife, Mrs. Hilda C. Ochsenrider administratrix of the estate. And when the estate was disclosed, the rights that Ochsenrider had struggled to peddle had grown to a value of $12,000,000.

The strip of land, two miles wide and 15 miles long, which Ochsenrider prospected, now constitutes an oil field which is acclaimed by Secretary of Interior Wilbur as the richest ever known in America, with potential oil reservoirs of 2,500,000,000 barrels worth upwards of $4,000,000,000.

"So rich is this oil in gasoline content," Secretary Wilbur said, "that 10 wells could supply the state of California and 100 wells could supply the nation. Its output could be produced so cheaply that the rest of the industry would be ruined."

The government stepped in and now controls the field.

Widows File Claims
It will be up to Superior Judge Frank W. Dunne to settle the claims of three women, each legally wed, who now come forward with their claims against Ochsenrider's fortune.

WIDOW NO. 1—Mrs. Frances Ochsenrider—She married the young geologist in the first few days had only one regiment facing the Japanese landing party.

Despite the Japanese mechanical superiority in warships, airplanes, tanks and all kinds of artillery, the North Station area, which they had expected to capture within three hours, is still held after nearly a fortnight. The same is true of the Woosung forts, although it is expected the great guns will be put out of action early as a result of the intense bombardment by the Japanese fleet for many days.

The stubborn resistance of the 19th army, still keeping the Japanese at bay, undoubtedly surprised everybody. For the first time, the Chinese army, with woefully inadequate equipment, faced the might of Japan unafraid, showing how to die.

We understand the Japanese rejected the essence of the four power proposals, whereafter they sent two divisions to Shanghai, full demonstrating their conquestal intentions.

Here are Washington Henry Ochsenrider and the three women who are claimants for his $12,000,000 estate arising from the Kettleman Hills oil fields. No. 1—Mrs. Frances Ochsenrider, divorced in 1909; No. 2—Mrs. Nancy Ochsenrider, divorced in 1924; No. 3—Mrs. Hilda C. Ochsenrider, administratrix of estate.

Ochsenrider in 1903 after a romance on Stanford University campus.

Ochsenrider was away a lot, roaming in Central America, Mexico and the California hills. She claims he secured a divorce in Nevada in 1909 without notifying her. After his death she secured a Nevada court order setting the decree aside.

WIDOW NO. 2—now Mrs. Nancy Ochsenrider—Became his bride the year of the first divorce. "But in 1923," she claims, "he came to me and said, 'I'm tired of you.' He asked me to live apart. Then he forced me to sign a property agreement and go to Nevada in 1924 for a divorce." Her claim is for about $4,500,000. By this marriage, there were two daughters, each of whom is now about high school age.

WIDOW NO. 3—Mrs. Hilda C. Ochsenrider, whom he married three months after his second divorce and who has been named administratrix of his estate. There is a small son by this marriage.

The Nevada court's decree is that Widow No. 1 is the legal widow because the divorce was improperly obtained.

Widows No. 2 and 3 claim their children are the rightful heirs and are prepared to fight.

Sister Also Sues
Another angle to the case is that Miss Emma Ochsenrider, a sister of the romantic geologist, is suing for a part of the millions on the claim that she loaned Ochsenrider money to finance his prospecting.

And what about the people who laughed at Ochsenrider when he tried to sell them his property rights in the Kettleman Hills for $12,000?

Maybe they ought to sue too, or just kick themselves, not too gently, come to ourselves?

Prayer: Heavenly Father, we are thankful because Thou has put into our minds a remembrance of Thee. We know how far we have gone away from the light and joy and peace which belong to Thy Presence. We see ourselves, although dimly, through Thy revelation, and we understand more clearly what poverty is ours since we deserted Thee. In utter loneliness and in despair we desire, O God, to come back unto Thy house. Forgive us, we pray Thee, and receive us once again in Thy love. Amen.

The daily devotions of the Fellowship of Prayer for the Lenten or pre-Easter season beginning today, Ash Wednesday, and concluding Easter Sunday, March 27, will be published by this newspaper.

The Fellowship of Prayer, now in its fourteenth year, is sponsored by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The use of the Fellowship devotions privately by individuals and families and publicly at services large or small is earnestly commended to its entire constituency by the Federal Council's administrative committee, Dean Luther A. Weigle of Yale Divinity school, chairman. The constituency of the Federal Council comprises twenty-five denominations with 136,574 local churches and a communicant membership upwards of twenty-three million representing a population of over sixty million in affiliated families.

The author of the Fellowship of Prayer devotions this year is the Rev. Dwight J. Bradley, pastor of the historic First Parish church, Newton Center, Mass. Mr. Bradley is a worthy son of a father who for over twenty-five years has been a leading minister in Cleveland, O., and of a missionary grandfather who introduced Christianity into Siam. Previous pastorates of Mr. Bradley were at El Paso, Texas, and at St. Louis, Mo.

The devotions were prepared by Mr. Bradley in collaboration with a committee representing the departments of evangelism of the various denominations including the United Church of Canada and the department of evangelistic emphasis of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A.'s. The purpose of the Fellowship of Prayer is to further the observance of Lent as a season for the deepening of devotional life and to encourage unity in prayer and worship on the part of all people of religious faith in America. The devotions of the Fellowship of Prayer are strictly non-sectarian.

The general theme for the devotions this year is "Recapturing the Dignity." The topics for the successive weeks of Lent are: "The Sense of Need"; "The Light of the World"; "The Receptive Heart"; "The Quickened Faith"; "The Renewed Hope"; "The Deepened Love"; "The Everlasting Light."

Wise Cracks? They're Old-Fashioned! Valentines of 1932 Are Sentimental or Lightly Humorous

This year's bumper crop of valentines promise enough variety to fit any mood. Among the depression cards are a wee-begone little pup (upper left) with diamond tear drops in his eyes and the caption: "Gee, I wish I had someone to love me." Among the leap-year cards is a girl catching a man in a butterfly net (lower right) and a flirtatious cat and mouse card (upper center), and among the cute cards come the Russian one (lower left) and the doggy cook (below center). Even friendship ranks valentines this year (left center). The valentine (upper right), with the patched heart, says on the inside flap: "I have a lot of love for you."

Trailing With Jack Dempsey On "Come Back" Road

(Editor's Note: Following is the third of a series of articles on Jack Dempsey's contemplated comeback.)

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

En route to Cleveland with Jack Dempsey, Feb. 10—(UP)—There is more than just a spark of the killer instinct left in the Dempsey of today.

He loves to fight. He thrills to the call of battle in his 37th year just as keenly as he did the day he hammered Jess Willard into helpless submission. The smell of resin, the feel of gloved fist delivered with impact on flesh and bone, the sight of an adversary in front of him arouses Dempsey as much in his present exhibition tour as it did in any of his important heavyweight bouts during his reign as champion.

There has been some attempt to discredit Dempsey's tour of the country and appearance in two and four-round bouts.

It is only necessary to see Dempsey in action in one "exhibition" to realize that when he steps into the ring he is in there to fight.

I saw Dempsey box a pair of two round "exhibitions" in Milwaukee Monday night, and there was more action in those 12 minutes than in any heavyweight bout I have seen in the past four years, not excluding the Tunney-Heenev, Schmeling-Stribling, Schmeling-Paulino, Sharkey-Loughran or Sharkey-Schmeling bouts.

Dempsey wears the same regalia into the ring as he would if he were fighting Schmeling for the heavyweight title tomorrow, except he will use 10-ounce gloves instead of 15-ounce ones. Everything looks like a real fight.

Dempsey trades punch for punch. He makes no attempt to protect himself. He bore numerous scars today of his four rounds against Buck Everett and Jack Roper at Milwaukee; small cut over left eye; purple eyelid over right eye; several small scars on his face; cuts inside and outside right ear. "Why do you ask your opponents to hit you, Jack?" I asked him. "You could have stopped either man if you had cut loose."

"Aw, those little cuts and bruises don't mean a thing," he answered. "I like to get in there and mix it. I have to allow some of my opponents to stay the two round limit with me because I need the work to get back into shape if I want to fight again. Then, if I knocked out every opponent I met I wouldn't be able to get any one to meet me. I have to hold myself back sometimes particularly when I get a good sock on the chin. I have an urge to go in and finish my man."

The man who referred the Dempsey-Brennan fight at Milwaukee in 1918, the fight which sent Jack on to win the heavyweight title, was the third man in the ring in the Milwaukee exhibitions.

This is what he has to say about the Dempsey of 1932 in comparison to the Dempsey of 1918:

"I couldn't believe my eyes when Jack started turning loose those left hooks in the second round against Everett. He wasn't a bit different from the Dempsey who whipped Brennan 14 years ago. In one respect he was even better. He didn't waste so many punches and was more accurate."

"The left hook he used against Brennan was no more effective than the one he used against Roper and Everett, and I noticed that when Dempsey dropped Everett the first time, he turned just as savage and vicious as he did when he felled Brennan. He was right on top of Everett when he got up and he kept knocking him down."

Cleveland, O., Feb. 10—(UP)—Jack Dempsey arrived today from Chicago for his four-round exhibition tomorrow night against Meyer (K. O.) Christner.

Christner has fought most of the leading heavyweights of the past three years including Jack Sharkey, Ernie Schaaf, Young Strieber, Paulino Uezudin and others.

He is 35, a year younger than Dempsey. He was one of Dempsey's sparring partners before Jack's second bout with Tunney at Chicago in 1927.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS

By Laufer

THEY ALL LAUGHED WHEN EARL AVERILL strode to the plate and cracked out this particular home run. It was about a year ago when the Snohomish Slugger was in the midst of a homer streak. A delegation of school kids from a suburban town were guests of the Cleveland Baseball Club. When Averill came to the plate they presented their hero with a toy bat that must have cost all of 25 cents. It was adorned with a nobby pink ribbon. Averill discarded his favorite club and faced the pitcher with the gift stick. Manager Peckinpaugh rushed from the dugout to deter Averill from his foolhardy idea, but before he could call time the pitcher was in his windup. "Crack!" and the ball went sailing over the right field barrier—a home run in a big league game with a two-bit kid bat!

EDGAR WALLACE, NOTED FOR MANY BOOKS, IS DEAD

Famous Author, a Victim Of Pneumonia, Had Dramatic Life

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 10 (UP)—Edgar Wallace British author and playwright, noted for his mystery stories, died early today of double pneumonia after a brief illness.

He contracted a cold last week which developed into pneumonia yesterday. The crisis came last night, and although for hours the writer fought for life, he died at 4:45 o'clock.

Robert Curtis, his secretary, and Walter Huston, actor, a friend, were at the home when Wallace died.

Wallace would have been 57 years of age next April. His widow, Mrs. Ethel Violet Wallace, was his second wife. There are two sons and two daughters. Mrs. Wallace left England today aboard the Majestic for his bedside.

Funeral arrangements will await communication with her.

The author came here several months ago to write screen plays for R. K. O. and Pathe, and had produced three, one of which is nearly ready for production.

Had Enjoyed Good Health
He had been in almost perfect health prior to his illness.

As he lay semi-conscious in his home last night, too ill to be moved to a hospital, a London audience witnessed the premier of his play, "The Green Pack," latest of more than a score of plays and literally innumerable stories, novels and scenarios he had written.

Wallace, most prolific author since Dickens, whose reading public ranged from Kings and millions of newspaper boys, lived a life as full of drama and thrills as any of his mystery books.

Seven years ago Wallace was a serial writer, earning $15 a thousand words. Thirty-five years ago he was an awkward, half-literate Cockney soldier. At ten he associated with juvenile thieves. When five days old he was an orphan destined for a state institution.

Wallace called himself "an atom that climbed out of the thick mud which clogs the feet of the battling millions."

Wallace was born in London and was snatched almost from the gates of the workhouse by a poor Billingsgate fish peddler, one Freeman, by name.

"Brans" of Gang
Wallace when 10 associated with a gang of small burglars, led by a desperado of twelve. He shared in the spoils for his "brainwork."

He sold newspapers, worked in a lithographic printing plant, carried parcels and manufactured boot heels. Then one day he forged his foster-parent's signature to papers and shipped as a cabin boy on a steam trawler. Seasickness decided him against a marine career.

He returned to London and went into the milk business. A quarrel with a partner led him to enlist for a seven-year term as a soldier in a Kentish regiment.

Later he transferred to the Medical Corps and thus, unwillingly, gained first hand knowledge of the mysteries of life one night when a soldier pulled Wallace into his hut and asked him to look out for his wife an expectant mother. Long before the doctor arrived, Wallace delivered the child after hasty consultation with a book on obstetrics.

Kipling His Inspiration
In South Africa met his inspiration and model, Rudyard Kipling. Wallace began to apply Kipling's advice. To fit himself for a writer's career, he studied the dictionary, read histories, encyclopedias and the classics. He became a free lance writer.

In the Boer War, Wallace was a correspondent. His thoughts enabled him to outwit censors and scoop his fellow reporters in flash, the signing of a peace treaty between Great Britain and the Boers.

When he returned to London he started publication of his "Sanders" and "Bones" stories, based on his African experiences. After that his pen never rested. He could turn out an 80,000-word serial in three days. He once turned out a play in four days and often produced 3,000-word short stories within a few hours.

In 1928 one-fourth of all the books sold in England were by Edgar Wallace. Once he had six successful plays running simultaneously in London. His books sold by the millions in America.

BIG SALE IN U. S.
New York, Feb. 10—(AP)—A million and a half of Edgar Wallace's books have been sold in the United States, his publishers estimated today.

"Which is a lot of books," they added.

But that's a mere bagatelle as compared to his record the world over. Here a few figures, as given out by the publishers.

He has written more than 150 books, the exact number being unknown to the publishers.

Five million copies are sold yearly.

He wrote the six most successful plays in London last year. Successful from a financial standpoint, that is.

One quarter of all the books sold in England last year were written by him.

He has written about 12 books a year, employing a voice recording device and two secretaries. It took him about two weeks to write a book, and a weekend was usually enough for a play.

One million two hundred thousand of his books were sold in England last year, and he has been a best seller in Germany, Austria, and South Africa.

In his spare time he conducted a racine column for a London newspaper.

ITALY'S PROPOSAL FOR DISARMAMENT HEARTILY CHEERED

Lists Many Ships It Is Willing To Do Away With

Geneva, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy and Ambassador Tsumeo Matsudaira of Japan presented the last two of the disarmament proposals of the five great powers to the world conference today.

The Italian Foreign Minister was applauded as he tolled off a long list of war implements Italy stands ready to scrap—capital ships, submarines, aircraft carriers, heavy artillery, tanks, bombing aircraft and chemical warfare weapons.

He also proposed a revision of the laws of war to protect civilian populations. In international quarters afterward the Italian plan was hailed as the first proposal for "real disarmament."

Ambassador Matsudaira, chief of the Japanese delegation, assured the conference, in the shortest speech delivered by the representative of any of the great powers, that "notwithstanding the unfortunate situation together with seven grandchildren and three great grandchildren and other more distant relatives and friends."

He said the Japanese delegation had come to cooperate with all the powers and that Japan favors a reduction in the size of battleships and the caliber of their guns, reduction of tonnage of airplane carriers, strict limitation of the use of all classes of war vessels, prohibition of air bombardments and of the use of poison gases and bacteria.

Polish Proposal.

August Zalski, Polish representative, presented a plan for "moral disarmament." He said Poland would offer a formal program under this head later and that Ambassador Hugh Gibson of the United States "forebore reminded us yesterday the best guarantee of security consists in our neighbors' good will."

Grandi said Italy rejected the French theory of security to precede disarmament. "Without disarmament," he added, "there can be no security." He accepted the German demand that other nations disarm in the same proportion as Germany is forced to do under the Treaty of Versailles.

He said Italy was in favor of prolonging the Washington and London naval agreements as proposed yesterday by Ambassador Hugh Gibson of the United States. He said he viewed the present conflict in the far east, not with the tragic irony with which others view it, but as "a warning to us all."

LONDON GRATIFIED.

London, Feb. 10.—(AP)—London newspapers expressed much gratification in editorials today over the disarmament proposals of the United States as outlined at Geneva by Ambassador Hugh Gibson, acting chief of the American delegation at the conference.

The press generally hailed the Gibson proposals as closely coinciding with the British plan outlined the day before by Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary. The Times said the American plan left a deep impression on the delegates and was assured of a ready response throughout the British Empire.

"Without the United States," the Times said, "a disarmament conference would have no good hope of competent and authoritative conclusions. Ambassador Gibson's speech, sealing unstinted American collaboration in the greatest of international enterprises, deserved its welcome and there is good reason to find other promise in its substance."

The Daily Telegraph, pointing out an accord between the American and British proposals in many points, said: "It will be a matter of satisfaction throughout the British Empire and is of good omen for the restoration of prosperity in the world that on this momentous matter of formulation of opinion and policy America's view is so coincident with our own."

"The real significance of the American proposals," the Liberal News-Chronicle said, "is the number of points upon which they coincide with both the British and French programs." The Express said: "We rejoice that the American view is practically identical with that of Great Britain. This is an alliance of temperament, of language, of ideals, an alliance of inevitability, one that grows stronger daily, although unrecorded by document or signature."

Vienna University Student Is Winner

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Carl Schaefer, young university student of Vienna, was crowned men's Olympic figure skating champion in the early hours of the morning today, lifting him to the international title above Gillis Grafstrom of Sweden, who won the championship both in 1924 and 1928.

Schaefer, bitter rival of the Swedish veteran, easily took the title with five of the seven judges voting for him for first place while the other two named him second. Grafstrom received the other two votes for first place, and three for second. The judges reached their decision several hours after completion of the men's competition last night, a brilliant display of free style skating that kept a capacity of 3,000 in the Olympic indoor arena cheering as one after another of the champions and contenders of eight nations went through their graceful and intricate maneuvers.

DIXON HIGH HIT HARD BY ILLNESS AND AGE RULING

Coach Sharpe Without
Four First String
Men This Week

BY DON HILLIKER
North Central Conference Standings

	W. L. Pct.
Belydere .....	4 0 1.000
DeKalb .....	3 1 .750
Sterling .....	2 2 .500
Dixon .....	1 3 .250
Rochelle .....	0 4 .000

Belydere is leading the North Central Conference race with the season's games half over. Belydere won over DeKalb last week to keep a clean record. Sterling is in third place with 500 and Dixon is one jump ahead of Rochelle.

With only two victories in nine games recorded this season the Dixon high school basketball team is undergoing some more "hard luck" during the present week. The heavy-weight squad has been hit hard with Bales suffering from a severe cold, Potts ill with influenza. Brown will be out of competition for two weeks following a slight attack of appendicitis and McReynolds is ineligible because of the age limit.

This leaves Coach Sharpe without four first stringers for Friday's game here with Rochelle. Dixon already has a victory over the Hubs in an overtime game in Rochelle's gym by 12-10. However, Dixon had full strength for that battle. A much weakened outfit will be lining up against Rochelle Friday evening.

The visitors have shown improvement over the game played against Dixon but are far from a smooth-sailing crew. Last week they lost to Polo, 10-7 in the game for the Ogle county championship. Their attack is built around Berve, center, who leads in the team's scoring.

Dixon's second team also has a win over Rochelle by the score of 9-8. After last week's victory at Savanna the lights have a record of three wins and five losses. Rochelle's seconds are in last place in the standings, failing to score a league victory. DeKalb leads the B team division with four wins.

According to the board's decision the notes will be issued in $50,000, $25,000, $10,000 and $1,000 and $100 denominations and will be subject to call December 1, 1932. Subscriptions are now being accepted by the Chicago financial houses in an effort to make the actual funds available at the earliest date possible.

Members of the board declared that the date on which the notes will become subject to call was placed as December 1 because of the bond issue provisions of the relief plan. Bonds if authorized at the November election, will be sold then and the proceeds applied to take up the tax anticipation notes.

Although Chicago and Cook county will be benefited mostly by the relief program, each county can take advantage of it. Participating counties will apply their allotments of the state gasoline tax to pay off the bonds that represent the amounts they draw from the emergency fund.

If the bond issue fails in the November election of the relief act is held to be invalid, the General revenue fund in the State Treasury stands as a guarantee of the payment of the bonds. If either of the former events occur an approximate 30 per cent increase in state tax rate will be necessary.

Administration of the fund to be created by the sale of the notes authorized yesterday will be entirely in the hands of the State Unemployment Commission, the seven members of which were appointed by Governor L. L. Emmerson as follows:

Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., A. A. Sprague, Victor A. Olander and Joseph M. Cudany all of Chicago; O. H. Wright, Belydere; and Arthur T. Eidman, Belleville.

Africa is estimated to have a population of 200,000,000.

AMERICANS FACE LOSS OF OLYMPIC BOB-SLED HONORS

Swiss Team Holds Four
Second Lead Over
U. S. Sledders

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10 (UP)—Four and thirty-hundredths seconds—a very short time to the man in the drug store but half a lifetime to a bobsledder racing against a stopwatch—may block America's hope for victory in the two-man bobsled event of the third Olympic winter games.

The precious four and thirty-hundredths seconds belonged to Reto Cappelrutt, the 20-year-old Swiss youth and pilot of the "Switzerland IV" he held the advantage over the crack American team of Hubert A. Stevens and Arthur Adams, when the bobsledders ascended Mt. Van Hoevenberg run today for the second and deciding half of the two-man competition.

Cappelrutt gained his advantage by making two trips down the mile and a half run yesterday in the time of 4:13.07. Stevens, despite the fact that the second of his two runs was made in 2:04.27 for a new world's mark, could do no better than finish second with a total time of 4:17.37.

But today Cappelrutt is scheduled for the second run down the ice.

That means the Swiss must blaze a trail through the early morning ice for the others. This is just what Stevens had to do yesterday, and it was his first heat—run in the slow time of 2:13.10—that cost him the four seconds. Cappelrutt was the next to last sled down in the first heat yesterday and found the track lightning fast. He came down in 2:05.88. This bettered Stevens' old mark of 2:09.00 by almost four seconds.

Ambulances Ready

Officials have arranged for several ambulances to be parked near the track today, fearing that Cappelrutt and Stevens, in an effort to cut down the distance, will land among boulders and trees.

While the two-man bobsled championship is being decided on Mt. Van Hoevenberg, some 62 athletes of a half a dozen or more nations will be racing for the 18-kilometer ski-running championship.

Hans Venjarenen of Norway, veteran of two previous Olympics, is expected to stride to a decisive victory. The ski run will start and finish at the stadium. The runners will be started at one minute intervals, and so fast do the boys glide along, the first man is expected to finish just as the last man off disappears through the stadium gates.

Two hockey exhibitions are also scheduled. Canada meeting a Lake Placid team in an exhibition game, and the United States taking on Germany in a genuine tilt.

Canada has a perfect record of five victories and no defeats, while the U. S. sextet has won three and lost one.

LOCAL BOXERS WIN MAJORITY OF ELKS BOUTS

Show Tuesday Evening
Interested Large Crowd Of Fans

A large crowd of boxing and wrestling fans, among which were many ladies, enjoyed a fine program last evening at the Elks club house, in which members of the Jim Betow gymnasium class of this city gave an excellent account of themselves. Of the seven boxing bouts, six were won by local boxers.

Joe Buberick won a decisive victory from Lester Grube of Rochelle in the 155 pound class. Paul Ardini had no trouble in defeating Wylie Hodge of Rochelle in the 145 pound division. John Mondlock was scheduled to meet Peter Zamos of Rockford, but L. Cotton was substituted and the Dixon boxer punched his way to an easy victory. Eddie Carlson was substituted and he was unable to outbox the Dixon lad. Farie Bellini was unable to handle George Smardo of the Rockford athletic club in the 126 pound class and was the only Dixon boxer to lose a decision. George Carlson punched his way to an easy win over Hubert De Sheper of Rockford who was substituted for J. Dalquist in the 118 pound class. Willie Davis boxed out an easy decision over Jim Simaitis of Rockford who substituted for Mike Anastasia in the feature bout in the 140 pound division.

Joe Wood of this city went into the ring with Mickey Barefield, also of this city, in the wrestling match and the former was given the decision after 20 minutes of grappling. Wood was the better of the two and on two occasions threw his elder adversary out of the ring into the crowd. Harry Stephan refereed the matches.

British Sportsman After Speed Trophy

London, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Lord Charles C. Wakefield, wealthy British sportsman, has challenged for the Harmsworth speedboat trophy, symbolical of the world's speedboat supremacy.

Lord Wakefield issued his formal challenge last night and announced he would enter his new, powerful Miss England III in the Harmsworth races at Detroit, Sept. 1 to 5.

The sister craft of Miss England II, world's record holder, is near completion at shops here. He said he expected to launch Miss England III in mid-April.

Piloted by Kaye Don, the Miss England II established the world mark of 110.223 miles an hour at Gardene, Italy, last July 9. Wakefield said he was confident his new boat would do one or two miles an hour better. Kaye Don also will pilot at Detroit.

Keen competition is expected between Wakefield's craft and Gar Wood's Miss America IX in which he recently claimed two new world records at Miami Beach, Fla. The marks were not allowed by speedboat officials, so Kaye Don's record still stands.

BRITISH URGED TO ADOPT NEW CURRENCY PLAN

Uniform Monetary System
Throughout Empire
Is Sought

LONDON (UP)—Strenuous efforts are being made by some of the British chambers of commerce to persuade the government to call a conference of empire representatives for the purpose of adopting a new "Empire Currency."

Backers of the plan are moved to exceptional efforts due to the fact that Great Britain's suspension of the gold standard has made the time for consideration of the question of currency already has been protracted. While no definite system is suggested, the need of a uniform monetary system throughout the Empire, is emphasized.

No Definite Plan
In a memorandum issued by the Council of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire dealing with many Empire problems, the question of an Empire currency already has been broached. While no definite system is suggested, the need of a uniform monetary system throughout the Empire, is emphasized.

A number of unofficial suggestions have been forthcoming. One proposal is to divide the pound into 1,000 mills instead of 960 farthings. Another, and a more simple one is to raise the penny in value so that there would be ten pennies instead of twelve to the shilling.

Raise Penny's Value

It is believed that the latter suggestion would be far more acceptable. It is claimed that simply raising the value of the penny to ten pennies to a shilling would secure practically all the advantages of decimal currency without any serious interference with the Englishman's previous habits. The new penny would be worth approximately a farthing more than the present one and it has been suggested that the new coin be called a "denny" instead of a penny.

Pacific Coast Is Leader In Air Mail

San Francisco.—(UP)—Pacific coast business firms and individuals are the largest per capita users of air mail in the United States, it was shown in figures compiled by postal authorities.

During 1931, the survey showed, more than 406,000 pounds of air mail were transported between Seattle, Wash., San Diego, Cal., and intermediate points, an increase of 116,000 pounds over 1930.

Tragedy Overtakes Jap Triumvirate

Tokyo, Feb. 10—(AP)—Tragedy struck the remnant of a once powerful triumvirate of Liberal Japanese statesmen, known as special friends of the United States, twice in little more than 24 hours, it was learned today when physicians of Baron Kijuro Shidehara, former Foreign Minister, announced he was seriously ill as a result of a fainting spell and an attack of cerebral anemia Monday night.

Former Finance Minister Junnosuke Inouye, second member of the triumvirate, was assassinated last night. A third member was former Premier Yukio Hamaguchi, who died last August from the effects of a would-be assassin's bullet.

Baron Shidehara was recovering slowly today, the physicians said, but he was confined to his bed and is running a slight temperature as a result of a cold and bronchitis which followed the cerebral attack. He is 60 years old.

Shidehara, Inouye and Hamaguchi were the powers of the Hamaguchi cabinet which resigned after Premier Hamaguchi's death last August. Shidehara and Inouye continued over into the cabinet of Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, which succeeded it.

The Wakatsuki government resigned last December when its policy for a milder procedure in China was criticized, as well as the conservative financial policies of Inouye.

Baron Shidehara was in the Japanese diplomatic service for nearly 35 years, and not so long ago was Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

SHOUSE FAVORS UNPLEDGED DEM. NAT. CONVENTION

Denies Having Taken Any
Sides in Pre-Primary Drives

Washington, Feb. 10—(AP)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, favors a party convention unpledged in advance to any candidate, free to make its choice on the basis of conditions at the time it is held.

He disclosed this view in a statement to The Associated Press, made public today. In it he directly denied having combined with former Governor Smith and Chairman Raskob to block the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Complete impartiality, he insisted, has been maintained both by himself and the national party headquarters. Raskob, in New York, yesterday issued a similar declaration of neutrality.

Shouse was asked his intentions in the light of widespread discussion which has followed the declaration of Smith regarding his availability as a candidate. Shouse made no reference to the Smith statement.

This same statement caused the Louisville Courier-Journal to undertake a poll of Democratic National Committee members and women.

Replies received by it up to now accounted for about two dozen of the more than one hundred members of the committee. Coming from all parts of the country they ranged from: "I do not consider Governor Smith a contender" to "his statements make him a candidate." In this partial list was no outspoken support for Smith, while several of the replies confirmed expected stands for Roosevelt, particularly in the far west and south.

Some, on the other hand, foresaw the chance for a compromise candidate, with the Texas Committeeman, Jed C. Adams of Dallas, declaring: "The situation seems to make the nomination of John N. Garner, the logical solution."

Among the states from which one or both of the committee members spoke openly for Roosevelt were Vermont, Georgia, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Oregon and Washington. Many of the committee members voiced personal admiration for Smith.

Shouse revealed he intends to retire from party management after the convention, which will be held June 27, and that he has no intention of accepting public office thereafter.

He said he had been consulted as to particular candidates by Democrats all over the country, but had invariably advised it would be wiser "from the standpoint of party and country alike" not to instruct delegates for anyone except where primary laws of the states made it necessary.

CAMPAIGN IS ON

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 10—(AP)—With the name of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York filed as a Democratic presidential candidate in the state primary election, campaigns were under way today for two other possible presidential candidates, a Democrat and a Republican.

Petitions were being circulated nominating Representative L. T. McFadden of Pennsylvania as a Republican candidate for the March 15 preferential primary. Congressman McFadden announced at Johnston, Pa., last night he would have "something to say" upon his return to Washington.

George Murray of Berthold announced a slate of 10 candidates for delegates to the national Democratic convention committed to support his brother, Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa) Bill Murray of Oklahoma will be filed Saturday with the Secretary of State.

With The Boxers

New York, Feb. 10—(UP)—James J. Johnston chief dispatcher at the K. & O. terminal, Madison Square Garden, has arranged for three capable "brakes" to try to flag Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express.

James Joy announced with considerable jubilation that Bat Battalino, Jackie Fields and Tony Canzoneri would wave the red flag at the Express in March. April and May, respectively. Johnston closed last night with Jack Hurley, Petrolle's manager, for the three 15-round bouts, two of which will be title fights.

The smashing welter weight from North Dakota will meet Battalino, former featherweight champion, in mid-March. Fields will gamble his welter-weight title against Petrolle sometime in April, and Canzoneri will risk his lightweight crown against Billy some night in May.

Battalino recently was deprived of his crown by the National Boxing Association because of a questionable showing against Freddy Miller at Cincinnati in an advertised "title" bout.

Fields recently staged a remarkable "come back" when he regained his title from Lou Brouillard of Boston.

The New York State Athletic Commission has formally reinstated Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, and his two managers, Joe Jacobs and Billy McCann. They were suspended in September, 1930, for refusing to grant Jack Sharkey a return title bout. Recently Schmeling agreed to meet Sharkey for the title in June. Schmeling's reinstatement carried with it automatic recognition of his championship. The action was taken at yesterday's weekly commission meeting.

Young Private Thinks Sherman Had Wrong Slant

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

Shanghai, Feb. 10—(AP)—You can take it from Private W. H. Lawin, United States Army, formerly of Cornucopia, Wis., that General Sherman had the wrong slant on war.

In fact, says Private Lawin, war isn't half bad, and he speaks with a measure of authority. Although he has had only nine months with the Army, as a member of the Second Battalion, 31st Infantry, he has had a front row reserved seat on the Chapei battle-front, since his outfit took over part of the International Settlement defense line.

Private Lawin was standing lone guard inside a sand bag "pill box" when The Associated Press correspondent came across him. He was cold but cheerful, and not indisposed to hash up a little philosophy.

"You can tell the folks back home I'm having the time of my life," Private Lawin grinned, shifting from one foot to the other.

"I must say though, there are some ways that Cornucopia has got it over Shanghai, or Manila."

"First, take the girls at Cornucopia—"

"Say, there's some mighty nice looking girls back there in Cornucopia and I've seen nothing here to compare with them. Fact is, I don't like the way the Chinese girls do their hair and I don't like to see women wearing pants."

RICH POLITICAL POST IS GOING A-BEGGING TODAY

No One Seems To Be Available For Cook
Co. Assessor

Chicago, Feb. 10—(AP)—A political post with a handsome salary is going, paradoxically, almost a-begging in Chicago.

It's the office of Assessor, recently reformed into a one-man task by the legislature's special session revision of Cook county's tax assessing and reviewing machinery.

In the Assessor lies the hopes of civic advisory leaders and governmental heads of freeing Chicago and Cook county from the sinkhole of uncollected taxes.

Latest to turn thumbs down on the office is J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert who's spent the past few months lopping millions of dollars off the budgets of local governments. He may, however, reconsider.

Edwin N. Hurley, wartime chairman of the Shipping Board and millionaire manufacturer, was the first choice of the civic rescue squad and Mayor Anton J. Cermak for the Assessor's post. But Hurley, as head of the non-partisan group that ended both the Democratic and Republican nomination meetings to Chicago, was forced to decline because of the pressure of preparing for the June conventions.

The financial relief program, as cut out for the assessing office, is two-fold:

Levying on hitherto untaxed billions of dollars of personal property, and Straightening out the middle of the 1930 tax levy, caused by the reassessment.

Three other men, at the top in Chicago civic activities, have also been forced by business demands to refuse the Assessor's post: Col. Robert Isham Randolph, former Assistant of Commerce president and "Sixer" head; Albert A. Sprague, millionaire food wholesaler and Department of Public Works Director; and W. R. Dawes.

Tunney Says He's Through With Ring

New York, Feb. 10—(AP)—The boys who have been building up the pleasant fiction that Gene Tunney contemplates a fighting come-back may just as well knock down the structure of their imagination.

On the authority of Tunney himself, the former world champion has never had and will not entertain now the slightest idea of returning to the ring.

"When I retired from the ring, I meant it," he told me today. I reminded him of stories that had been printed and recently repeated, predicting that circumstances might dictate otherwise, or that he might yield to some pressure.

"Yes, I know all about that," he replied, "and of course I cannot stop anyone from making a suggestion in the newspapers as to what I may or may not do. Nor do I take them seriously."

"The way I feel now is that I have my own life to lead and work out. I have my private interests. I am happy in what I am doing. I enjoyed writing my life story, yet I am surprised that so much interest is shown in it."

"I still am keenly interested in boxing and always will be."

But Jack Dempsey, it was suggested, appeared to be contemplating one.

"Yes, and you know, I hate to think of it," replied the man who twice gained decisions over the great man mauler.

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her extravagant mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her elder sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE. The two girls support the family. Molly foolishly spends money saved to pay the rent. Ellen decides to work at night at Dreamland as a dance hall hostess until the savings are made up. The hostesses must wear evening dresses and Ellen owns none.

STEVEN BARCLAY, a man of 37 and Ellen's employer, sees the girl crying and discovers the situation. He offers to give Ellen a dress but she proudly refuses. He then loans her a dress from stock.

Ellen dines with Barclay and he drives her to Dreamland where he leaves her. Ellen is half-pleased, half-frightened by her wealthy employer's obvious interest in her. But she forgets him entirely when at Dreamland she meets handsome young LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist, whose prospects, in his own phrase, are exactly nothing. She eagerly accepts Larry's invitation to tea the following day.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VII

ELLEN had never before realized how many steps there were in the five long flights that led to her own home. She was really very tired but she climbed doggedly forward, determined not to stop. The hall was hot and stuffy, piled up at the landings with rubbish awaiting the janitor's disposition. The house was asleep. Through thin walls she could hear the heavy sound of breathing and even the restless stirrings of the sleepers. At the second floor she identified a terrifying buzzing sound as Papa Barclay's snore.

She chuckled and pushed on.

Halfway between the fourth floor and the fifth she was unpleasantly surprised to see light shining from beneath the living room door of her own apartment. Oh, dear, someone was still awake! All the way home on the subway she had planned to hop straight into bed and drift off to sleep on the tide of her own glamorous imaginings. She did not want to share those imaginings or to discuss her experiences of the day. Now there was no help for it.

With a resigned sigh she unlocked the door and stepped into the Rossiter living room. Molly Rossiter, bright-eyed and wide-awake, sat at a battered mahogany table playing solitaire. Molly's solitaire was the joke of the family. Whenever she was beaten it was her habit to rearrange the cards and to proceed with the play. By faithfully adhering to that system, she never failed to run out all her cards.

"I've just beaten old Sol," she announced innocently as Ellen entered.

Then she sprang up and ran to greet her daughter.

"Sit down, darling," she urged. "You look tired to death. Do you want coffee? Shall I risk it or will you make it yourself? Did you have a good time? Tell me everything."

"Help, help," pleaded Ellen faintly, as she sank into a chair and pushed her hat back off her damp forehead. "You'll have to give me a chance. I'm winded. Don't bother about coffee. I'm going straight to bed."

"Not before you tell me all about it, are you?" Molly wailed in childish disappointment.

She wrenched the card free and tore open the envelope.

"You should have gone to bed, daughter's discomfort. Nor did honey," Ellen told her, as her temporary annoyance faded. "But since you didn't, what do you want to know especially?"

"I couldn't have slept a wink," Molly protested earnestly, clasping her hands about her bare knees. "I was too anxious to hear about everything about the dress particularly. Did you look beautiful? Where is it?"

"It's at Dreamland. I guess I looked all right," Ellen tackled the questions in reverse order.

"Oh, Ellen don't be so provoking! You aren't telling me anything! You only said over the phone that Mr. Barclay had lent it to you. What was he like? Was he nice?"

ELLEN understood that Molly wanted to know whether or not Barclay had been personal. Her mother was trembling with eagerness to share Barclay's every intonation, his every facial expression. What had he done? What had he said? How had he looked? She wanted to know not only what Ellen had thought but even what Ellen thought Barclay had thought. In short she was prepared for a sentimental orgy.

Ellen could not help being mildly irritated when her mother was in such a mood.

"He was rather nice," she answered listlessly. "He's quite old, you know—not likely to be enthusiastic. But extremely kind."

"Then you saw him only in his office?"

"He drove me to Dreamland," Ellen conceded reluctantly.

"Ellen, that's simply marvelous!" Molly exclaimed ecstatically. "I was sure this morning that something was going to happen. I told you, didn't I?"

"Oh, stop it!" Ellen wanted to say.

But she managed to hold her tongue. Molly, lost in romantic speculations, saw nothing of her lightful possibilities, she leaned forward, pulled Mike into her arms and tousled his hair until he squealed with delight.

"Oh, gee," gasped Mike, after a few minutes of uproarious roughhousing. "I forgot to tell you. Some pin came for you. That's why I was to wake you up."

"What came?"

"A great big long box with lots of green ribbons."

"Flowers! From Larry? Ellen was out of bed in a flash and into the living room. Myra and Molly were both at the table examining a giant florist box.

"It's from McClelland's!" Myra called out excitedly. "Mother and I thought you'd never get up. Did Mike wake you?"

Ellen's fingers trembled with the novel delight of tearing away green ribbons and massed layers of satiny paper. Roses, wet and darkly red—dozens of them!

"How many are there?" Molly incoherently demanded.

"Millions. It looks like, I can't count them. Oh, the beauties!"

She wrenched the card free and tore open the envelope. The ink had blurred with dampness but the writing was perfectly distinguishable. The writing was not Larry's.

"To the success of your new venture, S. B." read the message.

Ellen was ready to cry in her disappointment. She had been so sure! Myra and Molly were far too pleased and fluttered to notice anything amiss. Flowers and beaux in the Rossiter household were rare enough to cause any amount of excitement.

"I told you, I told you," Molly was insisting. "They're from Mr. Barclay, aren't they?"

"Yes," said Ellen.

THE girl read the message a second time in an effort to recapture some of her original delight at receiving such a splendid gift and failed. The card fluttered from her fingers. Molly pounced upon it. Together she and Myra read the short note and exclaimed and speculated and jubilated quite enough to make up for any lack in Ellen.

An umbrella stand was rushed into service. It was the only vessel in the house deep enough for the long stemmed beauties. Deploping the wastefulness Molly cut down the smooth green stems of half a dozen buds and arranged them at the shabby breakfast table. But her eyes were all for the tall splendor of the blooms in the stand pulled close to Ellen's chair.

"They're four feet long if they're an inch," she murmured happily, slipping into her place at the head of the table.

"Mother, if you say that again," Ellen said crossly, "I'll scream."

"I'll join you in the screaming," Myra offered amiably. But she added with a curious look at her sister, "Aren't you pleased, honey?"

WOMEN IN WAR-TORN SHANGHAI ARE KEPT BUSY

Native Women Seek To Aid Troops: Foreigners Bored

(Editor's note:—Two women, one a native-born Chinese newspaper worker, the second an American-born resident of Shanghai, a "foreigner" over there, have written their stories of women's activities under shell-fire in the war-torn Orient. The copyrighted stories written for the United Press are presented herewith.)

Shanghai, Feb. 10—(UP)—Chinese womanhood from the highest to the lowest has been deeply moved by the undeclared war raging in our midst since the terrible night of Jan. 21.

China's women have stood by helplessly. They watched Chinese troops burned. Many lost all their property, many lost their lives.

But the women only care that our troops succeeded in defending our soil against invaders.

Social life for Chinese women in this city no longer exists. There are no mah jongg or other social games. The women, rich and poor alike, are at the hospitals daily aiding the wounded, or raising funds to help our valiant troops.

Our fashionable schools are closed. The Chinese girls formed Red Cross units.

In every Chinese household, the servants loyally have been asking how they can help best. Many of our servants pooled their savings with ours to help the cause.

Women of the lower classes, previously never interested in China's actions, now beg daily for news of the war.

Many girls in Shanghai, fearing the schools will remain closed all year, are leaving for Hongkong and Canton, in south China. There they may continue their education in preparation for their parts in the building of the modern China.

Chinese women find their homes filled with refugees, relatives, friends and friends of friends. The influx of refugees has gravely complicated household problems. Women find trouble obtaining adequate food supplies.

This year, many of the New Year's "cunshaw" or bonus tips, were contributed to the troops.

Chinese women no longer wear gorgeous silken gowns.

Our interest has been harshly turned from apparel by our misery.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Shanghai, Feb. 10—(UP)—The spirit of sacrifice which has been stimulating American and other foreign women in Shanghai for the past fortnight is wearing a bit thin, and some women are getting bored.

Some see their husbands a few minutes daily. One appears daily at Settlement boundaries in evening dress and chats with guards. Nuns were too busy to notice shell fire.

When war clouds gathered over Shanghai and the ordinarily pleasant life of the International Settlement, many foreign women volunteered. They stood 50 deep at service headquarters seeking work as chauffeurs, stenographers, telephone operators and nurses.

The women who got the jobs are sticking to them manfully. But most of the women here have been accustomed to lives of leisure. Servants are plentiful. There is a continual round of social activities.

I met several acquaintances running their husbands' businesses while the men were on guard as members of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps. These women seemed to be getting on nicely despite the roar of guns.

Of course, a small minority were frankly afraid and keep indoors, with their children. These women were not criticized at all. They had not been under fire before. Maybe they will get used to it.

Some of the American and foreign children, that is the boys, were having a great time "playing war." I met one young lad on the street and asked him why he had left home. "Helping the volunteers," he replied proudly, and walked away with all the importance of a commanding officer.

The girls were kept inside. But they could look out of the windows and see airplanes flying overhead and soldiers marching in the streets. Movies, dancing, riding, golf, and other diversions are taboo. It is becoming difficult even to get a bridge four together.

Some of the wealthier residents have left town "to escape the cold weather." Others are more frank, and say they are staying here because they enjoy the excitement.

Madame Gaby Speelman is having as much fun out of the "war" as anybody. She is a former well-known Parisian actress, now the wife of one of Shanghai's leading capitalists.

At 4 A. M. daily, Gaby appears at the front lines on the Settlement boundaries, attired in evening dress and wearing diamonds, to give cigarettes and chocolate to the Volunteers and chat with them.

I talked with the bride of an American naval officer who said she saw her husband only five minutes a day. They have been married only three months.

Other women told me they saw their husbands only when the men came home to take baths. Such are the trials of the ladies.

I asked French nuns working in the General Hospital what they thought of the danger of shells whizzing over the settlement. They were not afraid.

"We are too busy to pay any attention," they said.

WASHINGTON

HIS LIFE STORY IN PICTURES, COMMEMORATING THE 200TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS BIRTH

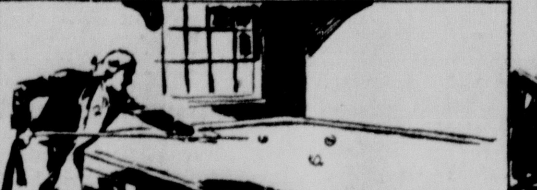

In 1753, he was sent to warn the French to desist from encroachment in the Ohio valley.

He enjoyed fox hunting and rode to hounds with the gusto of an English squire.

He narrowly escaped death when jerked into the Allegheny while floating down the river on a raft.

He often played billiards and cards, hunted, fished, and was fond of picnics.

He devoted much time to social life at Mount Vernon.

By NEA Service
Out of the maze of contradictory stories about Washington, there emerges a great plantation owner—hard headed, efficient, punctual, industrious, close-fisted practical and cautious.

He was one of Virginia's richest and most successful tobacco planters. He practiced crop rotation, diversified his products and experimented in breeding horses and cattle.

He disliked slavery on economic rather than moral grounds. He carefully clothed and fed his hands and employed a doctor to care for the sick.

House parties were frequent at Mt. Vernon. Washington liked afternoon tea served on the veranda in the summer; he was fond of picnics, because, clam bakes, he played cards and billiards, hunted, fished and still danced at the age of 64.

Washington's first taste of military life came in 1753, when Governor Dinwiddie sent him with a small party to warn the French to desist from encroachment on Ohio valley lands claimed by Virginia for the British crown. The French received him courteously enough, but told him they intended to take possession of the Ohio, nevertheless.

Returning homeward, Washington narrowly escaped death when thrown from a raft into the ice-filled Allegheny river.

TOMORROW: His romance.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

SOME MORE POLITICS

The article on Page 2, of Saturday evening's Telegraph, concerning the passage of the $20,000,000 unemployment relief measure, is interesting and enlightening, particularly as it portrays political methods of the present time. One might think from the press reports, that it was our legislators' sympathy for Chicago's unemployed and their destitute families, alone, which has caused these emergency bills to be rushed through in such haste. No doubt this thought did have much weight with some of the members of the Legislature, but I have a "hunch" that with some it was a desire to hurry up and get it over with before Sunday, when the farmer has time to sit by the fire and read the news of the preceding days and to ponder on what the Legislature has done to him the past week.

Of course he got the news early in the week, that the Income Tax bill had been passed and his discouragement was lightened considerably thereby. He saw in prospect, a $30,000,000 school fund, which would bring about a reduction of his school tax which has been in more recent years one of the heaviest drains on his pocket-book. He knew that farm organizations and other groups interested in the welfare of the boys and girls of the state, had been working for years in the support and furtherance of an income tax law, and when his morning paper and radio brought the news that at last it seemed to be a reality, naturally he felt encouraged, and had a warm feeling in his heart for the city legislators who had helped in its passage.

Then came the agitation concerning the "unemployment relief measures," some of which were, a $20,000,000 relief fund to be administered by an Emergency Relief Commission; a change in the gasoline tax law providing that the counties' share might be used for paying the bill, if so decided by a referendum vote of the people next November, otherwise to be paid by an increase in the state tax rate! I imagine there are a lot of farmers in Illinois wondering this Monday morning as they are milking, feeding and bedding their stock, etc., just what is going to happen now. We may have an Income Tax Law—if it is not declared unconstitutional—providing a school fund which will reduce property taxes somewhat, but if we must have our tax rate increased to provide a fund to take
